

All Souls Langham place is my home Church. I felt very much at home the day I first worshipped there and it has been my home church ever since I moved to London from India. I love the word, community, fellowship, mission focus and music here. I love serving here as All Souls is 'All for Jesus', a praying Church and the people who serve there do so with so much joy and care. I have served at All Souls Serve the City and Christianity Explored. I am a regular communicant and member there.

St. James Paddington is my parish church as I live in the neighbourhood and I enjoy the evening services during the week, special services during Lent and the Holy Week, concerts, and community events. Celebrating Pentecost Sunday with St. James is something I enjoy and look forward to as our Lord's prayer is said in many languages of people represented in the Church family and there is a delicious Bring 'n' Share lunch with traditional food from our respective home countries. Who can pass a biriyani and all the yummy food I cannot even name?

St. Vedast Foster Lane is my foster church. I work in the City of London in InsurTech (Insurance and Technology) and I enjoy worshipping at St. Vedast at the mid-day services. I get the opportunity to read scripture during the service and it feeds my soul. The readings on the life of saints and martyrs during the service stir us to action in life and in faith. We are all just regular people, like all the saints who walked before us, in need of Christ's salvation and called to do what others believe is impossible because we serve a God with whom nothing is impossible.

Ringling church bells brings me so much joy and I have the privilege of ringing the bells at St. Vedast before the Sunday service and I have had the opportunity to ring at St. James Garlickhyth and St. Giles Cripplegate in the City and a couple of other churches in London. Bell ringing is one of the underrated serving areas at church and I would support and promote it where I can.

Like all the revivalists and God's faithful remnant in this lovely nation, I say, here I am LORD, use me. I will speak for the voiceless, stand with the persecuted for Christ, pray for peace in Jerusalem, stand by the word of God, see God's hand in redeeming sexuality, and do my little part to see the demonstration of His Holy Spirit in transforming society.

If I were to be elected as a member of General Synod, I pledge to be true to the faith as the Church of England has received it and as it is revealed in Sacred Scripture. At a time of great change in the life of our nation, I believe it is more important than ever to have God's Word at the heart of our lives and faith in Jesus Christ as the foundation of our nation's spiritual and moral renewal.

Being steadfast in prayer and willing to listen to God and obey His will for me is what I practice as much as my human brokenness allows. Though single at 51, I desire seeing families built for the glory of God, just as our LORD has commanded. For now, the church family here in London is my family and community. I have the privilege of being Godmother to 2 lovely children whose family have graciously accepted me in this role. I am expecting one more soon and I hope to have a few more in the future. Where and when I am called to serve our LORD and His people, I will serve to the best of my ability. God bless.
